Letter of recommendation: Debbie Seid

I have known Debbie Seid both professionally and personally for almost 20 years and highly value not only her friendship but also her knowledge on how people relate to one another in both work and personal relationships.

Ms. Seid and I first became acquainted at Fielding Graduate University. Since then, we have had many opportunities to share ideas and consult with one another on issues such as training, coaching, leadership skill development, 360 degree feedback systems, instructional design & course development, and several other areas related to organizational effectiveness.

I have been extremely impressed with her high degree of quality standards, integrity, interpersonal skills, and knowledge. She is an individual with unprecedented talent and a person who possesses an infectious personality, which immediately translates into a high degree of trust and confidence in her professional abilities.

As a Lecturer in Organizational Studies at Fairleigh Dickinson University as well as an organizational systems consultant, I frequently call upon Debbie to discuss topics related to our discipline, since I highly value her experience and insight.

I strongly endorse and recommend her. I consider myself fortunate that our paths have crossed and that we will continue to be good friends and colleagues.

In conclusion, should you need further information do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,

Anthony C. Spina, Ph.D.
